

Empowering women in Indonesia's villages

Empowering women in Indonesia's villages | RSS.com

Improving the lot of Indonesia's rural women is no easy task. Yet the recently passed Village Law provides a unique opportunity for civil society organizations, government and village leadership to give women a stronger voice in decision making. Indonesia researchers Dr Rachael Diprose and Dr Amalinda Savirani examine the challenges faced by rural women and the programs being developed to help overcome them. Presented by Peter Clarke. An Asia Institute podcast.

Image: Homeworkers and their families, Asahan, North Sumatra, Indonesia. Credit: ILO Asia Asia-Pacific

Transcript.

An Asia Institute podcast.

Produced by Profactual - the Podcasting Specialists.

Music by audionautix.com.